Relationships

Vijay Sarma - 2010 Mayor of Toronto Hopeful

Nothing matters to us more than our relationships with each other. The main reason many of us don't feel up to fighting for our future is because our relationships have been weakened by our culture. Learning 10 or 100 bad things happening a week won't make a difference if we just get used to them. It's happening now.

We already get lots of relationship advice, but since most of it fails, check out the interviews below for ideas on why and what we can do. Since our relationships are our own and we know them well, we can't be too threatened by hearing different opinions. We can only confirm or improve our own - and - our relationships.

Once that happens, the sky's the limit on what we can do with and for each other. There is no right way of doing things, just options, both new and old. Our corporate culture has lots of suggestions, but they're not working for all of us, so we should probably keep an open mind to improving how we feel about each other.

Warm regards,

Vijay

Traditional relationships have been under attack for 100 years by social engineering, something our governments freely admit they engage in today. Men and women have now been raised to compete instead of complement each other. However, most of us know a few people who figure this out on some level and beat it, so we can too. If we want.

We've been given so many options that it's hard to decide what we want. But, we can learn why this culture was given to us to make more informed decisions about our relationships. What's promoted a lot doesn't necessarily work for everybody, so we should simply learn our history, review our options and think for ourselves and others.

100 years ago, super-rich people got a bad rap for union-busting and other stuff and decided to form charities to make them look good. They worked with governments they control to form tax-exempt foundations, then gave out grants to science, education and activism to control them. Today, these foundations are more powerful than ever.

The Rockefeller, Ford, Carnegie and thousands of other tax-exempt foundations were exposed by the 1954 U.S. Congress Reece Commission. Their influence on the world's culture was huge. They were socially engineering us to feel "equal" to accept a new global communism, plus hide who they were really working for. But, now we remember.

Feminism was one of their projects. While there's nothing wrong with women getting more to be happier, that's not what the super-rich wanted. They saw half the population wasn't working for their companies, or paying taxes to the governments they control, plus they got children early to educate them to be good consumers and producers.

To separate today's good ideas from bad, this history needs to be understood. Feminism was widely promoted so women were taught to feel more oppressed than they were, attack men, help destroy families, believe career was more important than family. Then often end up unhappy and alone working for The Man instead of with her man.

Men want power and women want security. At least most of us. This is where the biggest problem, reaction and solution for us is. Once we know what worked for thousands of years, we can see which 20th century ideas we each want to keep and discard. This is not about getting rid of our options, this is about remembering the ones we had.

Women who want a man usually want a strong one who protects women. But, our TV programming went from us having strong male and female role models on "Leave It To Beaver", to weak male and shrill female figures on "Everybody Loves Raymond", for example. This modern destabilizing dynamic leaves paranoid women with emasculated men.

Political correctness makes the obvious necessary here: men and women should do whatever they want, women should have all the same rights and freedoms and opportunities as men, etc. But, we know men and women are different and our relationships aren't better today, so we shouldn't just defend what we do, we should improve it with options.

Below are some articles, my interviews and videos explaining this in more detail. It's the most important component with respect to our desire to fight for our future, or lack thereof. The only reason we wouldn't want to is if we didn't value life, each other and where we live enough. By learning why, we can change that and look forward to being happier.

To your better sex -- and -- love life! :-)

Cheers,

Vij

Feminism Was Created To Destabilize Society

NOTE: Hollywood producer Aaron Russo was a friend of lawyer Nick Rockefeller, a member of one of the richest American families. In this 3 minute clip he explains what Rockefeller told him about feminism, including why they promoted it on television, in education and entertainment so much, including giving us false reasons for their ends.

Gloria Steinem Exposed: Feminist Spy for The CIA!

NOTE: Ms. Steinem admitted Ms. Magazine was funded by the CIA. It's been known but suppressed for 30 years. Betty Friedan, another early feminist pioneer, was a communist spy. Regardless of how much we like them, once we find this out, it's probably better to re-examine their ideas. We all need to know this stuff to finally deal with it.

POWER FOR LOVE (THE HETEROSEXUAL CONTRACT)

"The gesture of a man opening a door for a woman illustrates how men and women relate. We all know that a woman can open a door herself. But when a man does it, he is affirming her femininity, beauty and charm. When she graciously accepts, she is validating his masculine power.

This trade, a woman surrendering physical power in exchange for a man's protection (i.e. love) is the essence of heterosexuality. In order to develop emotionally, men and women need this mutual validation as much as sex itself. Sex is an expression of this exclusive contract.

Under the toxic influence of feminism, women open their own doors. Neither sexual identity is validated; neither sex matures emotionally. Men feel redundant and impotent; women feel rejected and unloved."

BONUS: The attacks on males are real and in mainstream news, so what should we do?

Telling our neighbours what's happening has been done for thousands of years.

While it's not in style today, it works better than just protesting and going home.

Consistently responding to bad information with better information can save lives.

The establishment is also attacking males to destroy their balls and survival skills.

Women can fight back too, but the bad guys know if men can't fight, then we'll lose.

See a few articles on how they're attacking "men" and decide if you want to fight back.

If you don't, ask why, then wonder if you will really be able to fight later if you can't now.

This should be a good reason to get in shape to take on the corruption doing this to you.

"Diet, injections, and injunctions will combine, from a very early age, to produce the sort of character and the sort of beliefs that the authorities consider desirable, and any serious criticism of the powers that be will become psychologically impossible."

- Bertrand Russell, "The Impact of Science on Society", 1953

"Imagine yourself if you can, becoming conscious that you are gradually losing your manhood; that your mind is rapidly deteriorating so that you are no longer capable of thinking clearly; unable to plan your future actions. Your resistance is becoming so weakened that you are no longer master of yourself. In short, you are rapidly developing into a moron, a robot, a zombie, readily subject to the dictates of others..."

- Dr. R. Swinburne Clymer, "Food and Liquids Used as a Medium in Deliberately and Carefully Planned Methods Developed by the Vicious Element of Humanity, for the Mental Deterioration and Moral Debasement of the Mass, as a Means Toward Their Enslavement.", 1958

Norman Dodd from the 1954 U.S. Congress' Reece Commission on Tax-Exempt Foundations Explains Their Control Over Science, Education and Activism

NOTE: This is important because we're sold tons of mainstream activism that chooses not to expose mainstream lies. It accepts them. Most of our charities, NGO's and activist groups don't challenge what governments and corporations say. They just work with them to keep getting their foundation grant money that controls what they'll look into, say and do.

Going along to get along sounds good, but it doesn't do the people they try to help much good, which is why most of the worlds problems keep getting worse. An easy rule is don't donate to any charity that can afford to advertise. Also, don't support activists that won't look for the truth even though it might help the people who they say they're trying to help. .

Of course, many good people work for and support these groups, so everyone should be polite as we wiggle our way out of a corrupt system to improve our efforts. But, we have to learn this to know we have to take care of our communities ourselves, or there will be more groups created to control how we dissent as part of bigger government plans to control us.

Congressional Committee to Investigate Tax-Exempt Foundations / Reece Committee

* The following are some comments on the 1958 412-page Foundations: Their Power and Influence by Rene A. Wormser, which was first published by the Devin-Adair Company of New York (Reprinted Covenant House Books, 1993): [1]

"In 1952, Congress commissioned the Cox Committee to investigate U.S. foundations. In 1953 it was the Reece Committee, and the author of this book was its general counsel. Wormser concedes that 'the emphasis on a search for organized Communist penetration of foundations absorbed much of the energy of the investigators and detracted somewhat from the efficacy of their general inquiry into subversion.' (page 177).

He is more interested in an emerging elite that has control of gigantic financial resources: 'An unparalleled amount of power is concentrated increasingly in the hands of an interlocking and self-perpetuating group. Unlike the power of corporate management, it is unchecked by stockholders; unlike the power of government, it is unchecked by the people; unlike the power of churches, it is unchecked by any firmly established canons of value.' (page viii) [2]

"Forty years later, it's clear that Wormser's concerns over foundations were not misplaced; they still wield enormous political and cultural power. It's also clear that Congress should have worried more about the U.S. secret state than about Communism. The connections between intelligence elites, and the international programs funded by major foundations such as Carnegie, Ford, and Rockefeller, are quite amazing and deserve their own book."[3]
